Abstract

This thesis deals with the changing nature of the politics in the Middle East, focusing mainly on the balance of power between Arab nation and Israel state and also considering the impact of international rivalry on the area. Analytically, the research adopts power relations approach to the study of political changes and developments in the region up to the present.

The researcher adopted a historical and analytical approach; and a number of data collection techniques were used, these ranged from reports, books, articles, conference papers, newspapers, and websites of relevance to the topic. A useful information was thus gathered on the main issues investigated such as the changes in the balance of power and rivalry and their impact on Arab-Israeli conflict.

After careful analysis and interpretation of the data, the researcher arrived at a number of conclusions, the most important of which are fluctuations in the balance of power since the cold war and collapse of the Soviet Union and current attempts to set up a new international order, all these contributed to the instability in the region as seen in the ups and downs and failures to resolve Arab-Israeli conflict.
